

The background of the cover is a photograph of a large, ancient-looking tree with thick, gnarled branches. The tree's trunk is the central focus, with several major branches spreading outwards. At the base of the tree, there is a fire burning, with bright orange and yellow flames rising from the ground. The fire appears to be consuming something at the base of the tree, possibly a fallen branch or some debris. The overall tone of the image is somber and dramatic, with the fire providing a stark contrast to the dark, textured bark of the tree.
