

We of Nottinghamshire are famous hands with the long bow

I will seize upon
this thieving
outlaw, if I have
to tear down
all of Sherwood
to find him

SHERIFF OF NOTTINGHAM

The first man that cometh a foot forward, or toucheth finger to bowstring, dieth!

He drew a good
smooth arrow
from his quiver
and fitted it to
the string...

Truly, I do
love this life
mightily

SHERWOOD FOREST

*Two hundred pounds were set
upon his
head*

The Merry Adventures of Robin Hood

FRIAR TUCK

*All things
have an
end, but*

*not such a lucky
ending as befell
Robin Hood and
his band of stout
yeomen in famous
Sberwood Forest*

THE LION GROWLS.
BEWARE THY HEAD.

And now
we will
see what befell
Robin
Hood in
his venture

Thou shalt share all
with us and lead a
right merry life in
the greenwood

LITTLE JOHN

Let us e'er be merry
while we may

Howard Pyle

Men sometimes
overreach
themselves through
greed and guile

SLY MAY HE BE, BUT SLY AM I, TOO

This is as bold and merry a knave as ever I heard tell of.
Marry, I must take this matter in hand and do what thou couldst not do, Sheriff, to wit, clear the forest of
him and his band

What sayest thou
to our seeking
adventures, each
one upon his own account?

Resumo de The Merry Adventures of Robin Hood

What could be merrier than joining Robin Hood's band of Merry Men for adventures in the English countryside? Pirates of the trees rather than the seas, Little John, Friar Tuck, Will Scarlet, and many others ensure that Robin's clever schemes relieve the rich of their excess treasures and redistribute the wealth to those most in need.

Howard Pyle was an accomplished author and illustrator; his original images, published with the stories in 1883, appear throughout the book. You will leave no leaf unturned in this latest addition to the Word Cloud Classics series.
